What are cookies?

Cookies are files that are used to identify a computer that has been used to access a network. Some cookies have the specific purpose of identifying a particular user to improve their website experience. The contents of the cookie files are exchanged from the user to the server and stored on the server when the user connects. Information saved on the server is subject to the permissions given by the user.

Why do we use cookies?

Some cookies are essential for the operation of our website. Other cookies optimise your visit. Cookies can be used by us to track our website analytics, and guide us towards improvements we can make to improve the user experience. Our use of cookies is defined by the permissions that you set when you visit our website.

The cookies that are categorised as "Necessary" are stored on your browser as they are essential for enabling the basic functionalities of the site.

We also use third-party cookies that help us analyse how you use this website, store your preferences, and provide the content and advertisements that are relevant to you. These cookies will only be stored in your browser with your prior consent.

You can choose to enable or disable some or all of these cookies but disabling some of them may affect your browsing experience.

You will find detailed information about all cookies under each consent category below:

- Necessary: Necessary cookies are required to enable the basic features of this site, such as providing secure log-in or adjusting your consent preferences. These cookies do not store any personally identifiable data.
- Functional: Functional cookies help perform certain functionalities like sharing the content of the website on social media platforms, collecting feedback, and other third-party features.
- Analytics: Analytical cookies are used to understand how visitors interact with the website. These cookies help provide information on metrics such as the number of visitors, bounce rate, traffic source, etc.
